COTTRILL MEETS WITH BOOST FROM MERCHANTS ASSN.

A resolution setting forth the appreciation of the Merchants' Association for the work done by Charles A. Cottrill during his residence in Honolulu as collector of United States internal revenue, was presented and unanimously accepted at a meeting of the directors of that organization yesterday afternoon. The resolution spoke in the highest terms of the ability with which Mr. Cottrill has fulfilled his duties, and was a near endorsement for reappointment as could be given by a body of representative merchants without entering into politics.

A sheaf of matters came up for discussion before the meeting, as well as the presentation of several interesting reports from committee chairmen. The agitation caused "through the alleged efforts of San Francisco to secure the appropriation made for the Pearl Harbor drydock in order to carry out a similar project at Hunter's Point, California, was discussed briefly and Delegate Kalaniana'ole, upon the invitation of the trustees, was present at the luncheon held this noon, at which time he set forth the true status. A Historic Spot. It is an excellent idea to mark the place in New York city where Adrian Block and his Dutch sailors built a ship in 1613 to replace the burned Tiger—even if we do not know where it was.

JEALOUSY THE CAUSE OF DOUBLE TRAGEDY

frequent references to this man. It is now believed, in the light of the tragedy last evening, that Wagner was the man of whom she spoke.

The baron and baroness and Mrs. Lorrin Andrews had acted in the capacity of witnesses at the marriage ceremony, and the baron said this morning that they had felt, being witness and having had her left by Stewart for them to "look out for," that they had a right to be taken into her confidence regarding this other man. But the information she offered, the baron said, was conflicting and without the hue of truth. Other information she gave them, of her birthplace, her former husband, the destination of her voyage, was open to the same objections.

She had told them she was on her way to Australia to visit her brother, that she lived in England until 18 months ago, that her husband was dead. She gave her age as 26 when the marriage license was issued. It is now known that she is 36 or 37 years of age.

Neither parents nor relatives of the man or woman have been located by the police. Wagner's last place of residence was San Francisco. He lived at the Cornelia apartments and was an automobile salesman. Before this he lived in Oakland—that was before the divorce, it is said.

He came here with a large amount of baggage including a shotgun, 500 rounds of ammunition, and a pistol. He was 32 or 33 years of age and well dressed. He is known to have drunk some while in the city, but not to excess. Gullik, the auto driver who was with him almost the entire day yesterday, said he only took three or four drinks in that time and that he was perfectly sober when the shooting occurred.

Gullik was engaged by Wagner in the morning, and about 10 o'clock the latter drove Wagner to the Seaside, where the woman and little "Bubbles" entered the machine. He drove them to the Majestic, and later in the afternoon to Waikiki Inn, where they remained for half an hour or so, and a little after 7 o'clock he brought them to the Seaside again. Before this he had heard the woman complain of Wagner carrying a pistol; she had asked him to turn it over to the chauffeur. The latter urged him to, but Wagner refused.

"I'm not crazy," he said. "It's all right." The next seen of the pistol was when they stopped at the hotel. The woman saw him draw it from his pocket, her cry attracted Gullik. He got out of the machine and started to Wagner to take it from him. Within eight feet of the latter a bullet whizzed by him. Gullik attempted to circle around the machine, to wrench the weapon from Wagner from behind. He was too late. The fatal shots were being fired at the woman as he rushed to her rescue. Then, still behind the machine, he saw Wagner raise the gun to his temple.

Stewart is 26 years of age. His marriage was a surprise to his friends in the firm. Meeting the woman on the steamer, he is said to have fallen instantly in love with her. By her statements made to friends, she pressed her to marry him even before she landed here. Their courtship was fast and uninterrupted.

Baron le Gay says she often expressed uncertainty of whether or not she loved Stewart, or wished to marry him. Even on the day of the ceremony, he said, she seemed to be in a doubtful frame of mind. The "other man" seemed to disturb her ease and assurance of mind.

An odd and perhaps a significant thing was found last night—a letter written by the woman to Stewart, the letter in Wagner's possession. It is argued on this that when he first came here he did not know of the marriage, though they met often, were seen together at various places, mainly the Majestic, but discovered it through this letter which he took from her. This say some could have touched the match to the fuse of his jealousy, and brought on the tragedy.

Captain of Detectives McDuffie has made a search of the papers found on the person and in the room of Wagner, and some of these papers throw a doubt over his reported divorce from the woman. She is known to have declared herself to be his wife when questioned at the Majestic, and there she allowed him to register her as Mrs. A. Woodward.

Deputy Sheriff Charles Rose also learned today that upon arrival here Mrs. Wagner forwarded a cable to Wagner, then on the coast, urging his immediate presence at Honolulu. A fellow passenger with the woman on the Sierra stated this morning that throughout the voyage Mrs. Wagner and her little daughter kept pretty well to themselves. It was with some reluctance that she met the friendly overtures of other travelers. It was through the friendly relations established by the child that as the voyage neared its end Mrs. Wagner was drawn into some of the social activities on board the liner.

Wagner had completed all plans for his return to the coast on the Oceanic liner Ventura, sailing from Honolulu on Friday evening, according to the information gained by Captain of Detectives McDuffie, who made a careful examination of a number of papers found in the effects of the dead man at the Majestic.

He is said to have met several local automobile men yesterday and confided to them his intention of returning to the mainland, there to secure

SUGAR TRUST UPSETS IDEAS AT WASHINGTON

that it would pursue the even tenor of its way.

Nothing remains for the government but to proceed with the prosecution instituted some time ago and follow it through a long course of dreary years to a conclusion in the United States supreme court. This is disheartening to the officials, who openly intimate that they would be much tickled if the sugar trust would reconsider and reopen the negotiations. This marks the first failure under the new plan of peaceful adjustment and the powers that be do not care to have such a large black mark on the other side of the page.

In the bill filed by the government against the sugar trust the allegation was made that it controlled about 72 per cent of the total output of refined sugar in the country, exclusive of the best sugar product, and that its percentage of the beet sugar produced was about 64 per cent of the total.

The case has not progressed at great speed, but the government recently completed its taking of testimony. Arguments probably will be made in the near future unless there is a resumption of negotiations.
